KIPLING'S LATEST

Our enterprising contemporary, the Daily Mail offered Mr. Runykn -Kirming £250 for a war poem. Mr. Ktirang supplied the verses, but refused the money, and asked that it should be banded over to the fund Tor the widows and children of reservists: The Daily Mail followed suit by offering to give the right of reproduction of the poem to any journal which liked to pay £5 5s. for it; that money also to go to the fund. For reciting the poem nightly at the Palace Theatre Mrs. BEERBORN TREE is receiving a salary of Lion a week, but she takes no a penny of it - all goes to the fund. The verses, when Sir ARTHUR SULLIVAN has set them to music (for a fee which, it need hardly be said, goes to the same good object) should make a stirring song. NOTES AND COMMENTS.

We do not agree with the Judgment of the Court, which we publish in another column, and which disposes of the point raised at the Police Court by the Land Investment and Agency Company Ltd. and by the Comp-any's Secretary Mr. Hoopen when he was charged, some time since, for neglecting to whitewash certain tenement houses the property of the Company, but, whether we agree or not, there the Judgment is and it finally determines that the person liable for any breach of the Sanitary Byelaws imposing any duty on the owner of premies is the Crown Lessee of the premises and not the person to whom the Crown Lessee may have sublet them, whether for 998 years or for three months and no matter what the terms of the letting may happen to be. It is satisfactory that the question is settled somehow, as from this time forward there can be no doubt or dispute as to the liability. Only one person at a time can be liable. The divided. The French Press bitterly resents duty cannot be incumbent on two different people at the same time and it is to the interest of all that it should be -definitely determined on whom the burden lies. It seems a pity, however, that the Court did not think fit to express an opinion on the other point submitted to them by Counsel in his argument, whether the Secretary of a Company can be made personally liable as owner when he is not in fact the owner but the Company is in that position. It will now probably entail the further expenditure of fees to settle that question, when a few words from the Bench would have settled it for ever, as neither the Board nor the Police | the Chief Joel is still endeavouring to stir up Magistrate could or would disregard the opinion of the Full Court.

We have interviewed the Land Investament Company's people as to the facts of the case, and they are instructive as to the methods of procedure adopted, by the Sanitary Board and the amount of common sense displayed by the members in the performance of their very onerous and responsible duties.

The Land Investment Company are th owners of twenty-six houses in three blocks, which are let to a Chinaman on a few years lease, and the lease specially provides that the Chinese Lessee is to do the same annual whitewashing. The premises in question were due to be whitewashed in July and August last, but the Lessee failed to do the work in time. The Sanitary Board allowed the time to run out without taking any notice or reminding any one concerned that there was any default, and, on the 18th September last, Mr. Hooper was served with twenty-six several notices to get the work done. He referred the Board to the Lessee but got back an instant reply that he was the owner and responsible, and so he made no more a requirements of the Board.

The Hongkong Land Investment Conifrom the service of the notice upon them to get these twenty-six houses, occupied as tenements, cleansed and whitewashed to the thorough satisfaction of the S. B. Well, there is nothing extraordinary in that. It would be smart work, all things considered, but it could be done with a little push. But the notice went on to say that the Land Investment Com-Dany BEFORE BEGINNING THE WORK was to send notice to the S. B. three clear days before the work commenced. Three CLEAR Cook's son-Duke's son-son of a belted days! The gentleman who compiled the notice—it it was not the office coolie Son of a Lambeth publican—it's who put it together — could not have leasehold land on which to build houses or known the meaning of the phrases be commercial entrepots. THE Requiem Mass at the R. C. Pro-Cathedral Kensington for the fallen in the Transvaal War was a particularly National as well as a particularly Catholic celebration. The Union Jack gains its full significance in that environment of Catholic ceremonial, and is seen to be most effecting when draping a catafalque before an altar. The congregation present Monday included some who had seen the colours obscured by the smoke of incense. The Absolutions were given by Cardinal Vaughan, of whom it was not inappropriate to the moment to remember that he came of a family who were nearly all soldiers if they were not priests, from the days of Agincourt to those of the Crimea, where his own father served as a volunteer. The figure of Bishop Brindle, the, much-decorated soldier-priest, who sang the Requiem added completeness to a scene in which piety and patriotism united-"the kindred points of Heaven and Home."

MADAME KONORAH AT THE CITY HALL.

The entertainment given by Madame Konorah and the Berol Bros, last evening amply fulfilled the expectations raised from the culogies lavished by northern papers, and the audience who assembled to witness the performance went away for the most part completely mystified and delighted with the unaccountable feats performed by the skilful pair,-Madame Konorah and Max Berol, Mr. Berol, who opened the performance with a number of exhibitions of paiming whereby with singular neatness he exchanged handkerchiefs of various colours, apparently produced in first place from nothing, deserved the applituse he received. His second trick was that from tins, evidently filled with sawdust paper, producing coffee and milk, whilst from a glass jar which he also filled with paper and covered with a newspaper the "Merry Wizard' was able to produce a plentiful supply of sugar. That the conce was good was demonstrated by the ladies in the stalls, who partook of the re-

Madame Konorah then proceeded to astonish her audience by some remarkable feats of calculation-several gentlemen in the audience called out figures, the lady the time having her back back turned and being at the same time blindfolded, several colums of figures having been thus placed on a blackboard she proceeded to add them up, with astonishing rapidity, and afterwards added up simultaneously from three small blackboards rows of figures, which were not called out, but which were written on the boards by gentlemen in the audience. It was a remarkable feat and extremely clever in its mystification, whether "second sight," as claimed by the performer, or some carefully arranged trick.

Mr. Wm. Berol, after a few minutes interval, varied the programme with some comic songs and imitations, Madame Konorah afterwards giving an exhibition of mind reading, the cleverness of which was only equalled by he previous performance, concluding with the cabinet trick, which those who have visited Maskelyne and Cook are familiar with. The lady enters an arrangement in the centre of the stage, formed with curtains, and is bound to a stake securely nailed to the floor, and has her hands tied behind her and her feet fastened to the floor, but immediately upon the curtain forming part of the arrangement being dropped, hiding her from the audience, there comes from the interior the sound of bells ringing a tame bourine beating and, notwithstanding the fac that her mouth is bound, a shrill whistling is heard, all from the interior of the curtain arrangement. The bells and tambouring are then thrown over the top of the curtains and, al becoming silent, the front curtain is drawn aside and Madame Konorah is discovered bound as before. Mr. Kirkwood, one of the audience, was finally invited to enter the cabinet with the lady he did so, and was shut in for a few moments and upon the curtain again being drawn aside, tha gentleman was seen divested of his coat and blindfolded-Madame Konorah having on the coat instead. Mr. Kirkwood in reply to a question stated he was quite unaware what had happened to him, of course we are not prepared to argue that point. There can be no mistake, however, that the whole entertainment was very amusing and descrives a visit. There are to be three more entertainments given in Hongkong, which ought to be well attended.

December 5th.

Mr. J. J. Francis, Q.C. (instructed by Mr. J. s(eamers. We should recommend all who car Hastings) appeared for the appellant, Hon, H.

Madistrate upon a point of law as to the meanbye-law made by the Sanitary Board on 13th August, 1896, under the provision of sub-section 4 of Section 13 of Ordinance No. 24 of 1887. The bye-law in question is as follows: 'Any house or part of a house which is occupied by members of more than one family shall, unless specially exempted by the Sanitary Board, be cleansed and limewashed throughout by the owner to the satisfaction of the said Board not less than twice in every year, namely during the months of, &c., &c., (according to the district in which the premises are situated), and notice of such intended cleansing and limewashing shall be sent to the Secretary of the Sanitary Board three clear days before the work is commenced Section 83 of the Ordinance (which is the Public Health Ordinance, 1887) enacts that any person contravening any provision of (inter-alia) any Bye-Law made thereunder, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding fifty dollars, or in default of payment, to imprisonment not exceeding three months. It was not disputed that the Bye-Law was contravened and the Magistrate holding the Hongkong Land Investment and Agency Company, Limited, to be the owner within the meaning of the Bye Law inflicted a fine of $10 in respect of each house, upon the appellant. It appeared that the pre-mises in question were all of them occupied by more than one family and were held under a Crown Lease by the Hongkong Land Investment and Agency Company, Limited, and that. the appellant was Secretary of such Company. It also appeared that, by an Agreement for Lease, dated the 20th December, 1898, the Company agreed to underlease the said premises to one at the rent therein mentioned, and it was agreed that such Lease should contain a covenant on the part of the said Chin Wa to keep the said premises in good and substantial condition and repair including all limewashing or other reparations required by the Government or the Sanitary Board, and that, until the execution of the Lease, the said premises should be held by the said Chin Wa subject to the covenants and conditions to be contained in the said Lease. The Agreement also provided that the Lease should contain a provison that if the Company or their assigns sold the premises they might determine the Lease on or after 31st March, root, on giving Chin Wa three calendar months' notice. There was also to be a provison for re-entry for non-payment of rent orbreach of any of the covenants. This Agreement for Lease was duly registered at the Land Office in February, 1899, and Chin Wa was in possession under such Agreement and received and collected the rents from the occupiers. The cleansing and limewashing not having been done, although notice was given to the appellant on 18th September last the question arises as to the person responsible for this omission. Is the Company 'the owner' within: the meaning of the Bye-Law or is the sublessee, Chin Wa, the person to be deemed the owner? It was contended before the Magistrate on behalf of the appellant that the word owner, as defined by section 3 (13) of the Public Health Ordinance, means owner in possession, that is the person entitled to receipt. of the rents immediately from the occupiers. and did not mean a person only entitled to the reversion expectant upon the determination of Montague, Law Reports, 7 Queen's Bench, p. 418, was cited in support of that contentions The Magistrate, however, decided that the word 'Owner' as defined by the Ordinance did not bear such a restricted meaning and that. the Company was 'Owner' of the premises in question within the meaning of the statutory definition. The case submitted to the Court proceeds to set out the question of law asfollows :- The question of law upon which this case is stated for the opinion of the Court is therefore:-Whether, under the above state of facts, the term owner as used in the said Bye Law and defined by the said Ordinance is limited, as contended for by the appellants, to the person who immediately receives the rentfrom the actual occupier of the premises or whether the Land Investment and Agency Company, Limited, can be considered the owners as either being the house owners or else as being in receipt of the rent of the premises.'. The definition of owner given by the Ordinance is as follows:—

"Owner.-Any house-owner, or the person for the time being receiving the rent of the premises solely or as joint tenants or tenant in common with others, or receiving the tent of any premises whether on his own behalf or that of any other person, or, where: the owner cannot be found or asceitained, the occupier; and for the purposes of this Ordinance every mortagee in possession shall be deemed an owner." and it is provided by the Ordinance such is to be the meaning of the word "owner" in any. Bye Law made under the Ordinance Now several cases were cited on both sides but the difficulty is that the definition of "owner" in the Acts of Parliament under which those cases were decided is not precisely the same as the definition in our Public Health Ordinance in Hongkong, and therefore one, in reality, derives very little assistance from such cases It seems to me that the first three words viz "Any house-owner" are fatal, to the contention of the Company. Her Majesty grants a Lease for 999 years of this land to the Company, the houses are, built and the Company becomes the owner of the houses, is the house-owner."

The fact that the Company sub-lets these houses, on certain conditions, for a term of five years at a rent of $450 a month does not make. the Company cease to be the owner. The house-owner has sub-let to a tenent who, while: collecting rent from the occupier, himself alsopays a rent to the owner, the Company. am, therefore, of opinion that the Company is the house owner and comes within the definition of "owner" and the question we are asked must be answered accordingly.

It is important to bear in mind that the case only requested our opinion on that one specific. point. There is nothing before us to show that the Appellant took or desired to take, before the Magistrate, the objection that even if the Company should be held liable as "owner" such decision, would not justify fining the Secretary of the Company, but that the Company itself should have been summoned and fined. I mention this, because when the case came before the Court, on the argument of the question of law submitted, the Appellant's Counsel began to raise this objection as if it had been a point on which our ording was asked by the case.

In Purkiss v. Huxtable, 28 Law Journal, Magistrate's Cases, p. 221, when a similar course was adopted the Court said "This point cannot now be inado, as it was not raised when the hearing took place () fore the Julices. OPINIONS ON THE WAR.

We have spoken of the frequent use of cavalry in the present campaign as unfortunate. The objections to the practice are forcibly put by a military writer in The Daily News. After noting that the two regiments which ultimately surrendered were allowed to lose touch with the main body, and to wander into space, just because they had no cavalry with them, in the general advance under Sir George White If practically to do the work of infantry." The critic continues: "This incident of the cavalry doing just the work for which it is least fitted, and abandoning that for which it exists, is being repeated with such painful monotony that it is time to point out its disastrous effects. The spectacle of cavalry, with an equipment and accourrements entirely unsuited to the purpose, dragging themselves, up over the rough or smooth hillocks and boulders of Natal, and when they do arrive at the top, firing with weapons necessarily inferior to those of the Boers, handled by men whose other duties forbid them to compete successfully with ordinary infantry, and make them for the Boers a mere laughing stock, is one over which the English soldier who looks with intelligent eyes can only weep; for meantime the very battalions fall before the triumphant farmers who can, and do see both where their enemy is and how to shoot him."

There is one question which this correspondent's words inevitably suggest. Perhaps we had better first quote his words:-

There is terrible disappointment here among those who cannot get into the Imperial Light | Such steps are necessary unless we are content, Horse. Old hands are turning up from every- I firstly to exist as a nation on sufferance of other where; some are coming back from home; giving up their trips to England, so long waited for, One has put off his wedding to come. A letter forwarded to the Times from Natal contains interesting details of the formation and organisation of the Imperial Light Horse, the Johannesburg corps, who did such good service at Elandslangte. The regiment was soo strong, and divided into six squadrons of three troops each: The men were subjected to a severe test examination in riding and rifleshooting, as well as health, and some 25 per cent. of the applicants were rejected. The disappointment among these was intense, as they had come from all quarters, and postponed, al other affairs, even in one case marriage, in order to join the corps. At Elandslaagte they fought as infantry, a use of mounted troops which has received unfortunate development during the present campaign, having obtained permission to share in the advance on fool. They fought side by side with the Gordon Highlanders, perhaps the crack regiment of the Line, and the writer who communicates this information points to the testimonics to their valour on the field as a splendid refutation of the charges of cowardice levelled against 'Uitlanders for their want of co-operation in the After explaining the organisation of the enormous transport service, Mr. Wyndham said that by October 25th, 24,000 men would be shipped; that is, in less than six days. The cost of mobilising 47,000 men, transferring them, maintaining them, for four months in a land destitute of surplus supplies, Mr. Wyndham said would be £7,000,000. By dispatching these thirty-three battalions," he continued, "we destroyed thirty three machines for training men and instructing officers in their simple duties, and we broke up the more complex organism of brigades necessary for the instruction of general and staff officers. The Government, therefore, proposes to embody thirtythree battalions of militia. We would have violated a fundamental principle of our army system if we had mobilised without militia, that principle being that when all the battalions of a regiment are sent abroad we must call out the affiliated militia battalion and form a provisional battalion by welding the militia and the men under twenty left behind. MR. CHAMBERLAIN ON THE WAR.

During a debate in the House of Commons, Sir William Vernon Harcourt, the former Liberal leader in the House, said he desired to again call attention to the provocation of the Secretary of State for the Colonies, Mr. Chamberlain, during the negotiations with the Transvaal and in his speech at Highbury.

Mr. Chamberlain replied, repudiating the intention to be provocative and saying he only intended to be plain and free from ambiguity. He added that he only followed in the negotiations the principles observed by all statesmen during the past ten or twenty years. There was a time, he explained, when diplomacy was regarded as given to statemen to enable them to conceal their thoughts. That nught fairly be called the "old diplomacy," which, he said, "I absolutely repudiate." l'eople, he continued, are entitled to demand a clear expression of views and he asserted there was never the slightest justification for the statement that President Kruger had been in doubt.

Mr. Chamberlain then said: "Our objects, methods, and determination were to carry out these objects. It was necessary to impress upon President Kruger the seriousness of the step he was called upon to take and the consequences which would follow any mistake on his part. It was not desirable to include in an official dispatch collateral suggestions and indications of opinion, but semi-official warning was frequently conveyed in a speech. A similar warning was given by Lord Salisbury to the Sultan at the Guildhall banquet, and am still absolutely unrepentant. Respecting to-day's speeches, they are simply repetitions of old arguments from Irish members whose boast is that they are England's enemies, and from the Radicals, who in principle oppose the war. Regarding Mr. Davitt, Mr. Chamberlain said he recognized that he had hitherto discussed the matter moderately and sincerely. "And," he added, "I would pay the greatest, attention to his arguments if I did not know he would use precisely the same arguments in regard to any British war, which are based on his enmity to England." Mr. Chamberlain then said: "What would have been the Irish argument in the Spanish-American war, in which Spain showed herself infinitely less capable of defending herself than the Transvaal---" Here William Redmond, Parnellite member for East Clare, shouted: "The Transvaal did not blow up your war ships."

Mr. Chamberlain continued: "The great, almost determining contest between the United States and Spain, was fought without the loss of a single American. We never have denied that the Transvaal was a forman worthy of our steel. Not only was the disparity in the forces in the Spanish-American war as great as those how engaged, but the contention of the United States and their right of interference arose from the fact that at the saine distance from their territories there was oppression, not of American citizens, but of another race and people, which justified the intervention of the United States in the mind of the civilized world, or at any rate in the eyes of Englishmen and Irishmen. But we are interfering in behalf of our own people. It is perfectly certain that Mr. Davitt, with us as he did with America."

Mr. Chamberlain then replied to the criticism of his note accepting the mediation of Mr. Hofmeyer, the Afrikander leader, pointing out that while he believed Mr. Hofmeyer was sincere, yet he could not forget that when President Kruger made "absolutely illusory proposals for a settlement" Mr. Hofmeyer was perfectly ready to accept them. President Kruger misled Mr. Hofmeyer in promising him proposals, which differed materially from those he really presented. "There has been on the part of the Transvaal, crookedness altogether, in comprehensible if they desired a settlement," continued Mr. Chamberlain "I believe that from first to last President Kruger never intended to give any thing approaching equal rights to the white races, or any acknowledgement of British supremacy. War therefore, was inevitable. There had been an enormous strain upon us. We are called upon to bring the war to a quick conclusion and send across the sea a force such as no nation in history ever before sent. This is entirely due to the preparations which made the Transvaal an armed comp, and which not only secured it a defensive position but enabled it to take the offensive against the large force now engaged. "Such a thing could not be continued for ever. We have needed a permanent force of 25,000 in South Africa. We are told we shall lose South Africa.' Our foreign friends are convinced of it. Yet they are not happy. Such predictions were made before, and were even current in the days of Elizabeth. But I am not alarmed. One great Teutonic people cannot hold in subjection another great Teutonic people, but this has never been out course. It is impossible to pretend that the Dutch at the Cape are crushed by our rule, when they have all the rights Englishmen possess, and even individual cases are permitted to talk and write treason. Whatever may be the result of the war, and the premature talk, of the result, from the present war does any one imagine that we shall fail to do for others what we claimed for ourselves, or refuse equal rights to the Dutch in the Transvaal, which they refused us?"

SIR GEORGE WHITE.

An interesting tribute to this officer was paid by Lord Ripon in the course of a speech a day or two ago. "To himself," he said, "the war in Natal had a peculiar and all-absorbing interest, because that gallant and accomplished soldier, Sir George White, was a dear friend of his, and was also his military secretary during some portion of the time he was Viceroy of India. He knew him well. He was the bravest of the brave, and he was sure that the honour and interest of the British Empire was safe in his hands. ... But it was not only as a military hero that they must regard him with admiration, for had he not shown that he had the generous spirit and the just and humane appreciation of his foe which characterized the British soldier and the British gentleman?"

The scheme has been partly devised by Mr. Hare, who is the head of the Chinese department of the Malay States. The substance of the scheme is to recruit direct from the Canton Province, and toship from Canton on vessels that shall go direct to the Malay Peninsula ports. It is not intended that these vessels shall pass through Singapore without stopping, and they may, no doubt, but for his hatred of England, would sympathize | bring some coolies for Singapore, But the substantive point of the scheme is that coolies shall be recruited in the Canton Province, for the Malay Peninsula, and shall be taken direct from Canton to the Malay Peninsula without any change of steamer. The Government of the Federated Malay States are prepared to contribute $5 a head towards the working of this scheme, up to a limit not exceeding 50,000

CONTINENTAL PRESS ON THE SITUATION.

London, November 1st. Abroad, especially in France, no pains are staken to disguise the satisfaction in consequenco of the British disaster at Ladysmith. In Paris every means of spreading the hows was utilized. Some of the more dignified papers adopted a respectful and sympathetic tone, but the majority were overloyed. The editor of the Patrie hung the Transvaal and Orange Free State flags out of the office windows, The Presse predicts a general revolt of the Dutch population in South Africa. The Soir hints its regret that France did not adopt a different attitude during the Fashoda crisis. The Courier de Soir thinks the Continental powers will propose arbitration.

The Siecle is almost alone in supporting Great Britain against the Boers.

BERLIN, October 31st. The Berlin papers have had very little to say so far regarding the British disaster at Lady smith, but they show a disposition to inagnify it and to criticise Sir, George Whitels tactics severely upon what one paper styles his "en-deavour to deceive the public." There is little doubt, however, that, in view of Emperor William's coming visit to England, the opinions held in high quarters will influence the newspaper comments.

ROME, October 31st. With the exception, of other organs of the Vatican, the Italian newspapers sympathize with England in hor misfortune with Lind VIENNA, November 1st. The general public throughout Austria, so far as can be judged from the utterances of the Press, seems rather glad that the British have met with a reverse.

BRUSSELS, October 31st. There is great enthusiasm over the news from Ladysmith. Belgians, Dutch, and Germans are jubilant. General White's admission of defeat and surrender and his assumption of all blame are commented upon as an expression of a desire that he be recalled. The members of the Transvaal committee here are wildly

British Naval Preparations.

LONDON, October 25th. New and stringent orders were promulgated yesterday with reference to the defences at Gibraltar. The privilege Englishmen have "hitherto had of entering the gates without a pass is temporarily suspended. Nobody is allowed to enter or inspect the batteries. Even the famous St Michael's cave is closed, because it is required for the storage of arms and ammunition. For months sappers and miners have been engaged in the construction of new and powerful-batteries, and it is believed that the garrison will be augmented.

The Times commenting editorially on the rumour of European intervention, scouts the idea and says: "No power will lift a finger. The alarming combinations built upon our naval movements have no existence save in overheated imaginations."

QUEENSTOWN, October 25th.

The British cruisers Furious, Pelorus, and Pactolus sailed from here this afternoon on route to Gape Clear, where they will meet eight battleships and two cruisers of the Channel squadron from the north of Ireland. The fleet will then proceed estensibly to Gibraltar, but it is thought that possibly the fleet's destination is a Spanish or Portuguese port, as the vessels have taken out bills of health from the Consuls of Dadre, Mons. those countries.

LONDON, October 26th.

Dispatches from the Continent to the Daily Mall says that the French fleet has received | Dahl, L. instructions to watch the movements of the British Mediterranean squadron and that the Italian fleet is under orders to concentrate in Dawtershaw, Mrs. he Bay of Spezia.

The extent of the British preparations re- Finanzki, L. vealed by to-day's information, causes a strong [Ferraida, A. resteration of the rumours of serious foreign | Fondey, C. F. complications. It is now said that Rear-Admiral Lord Charles Beresford will command the Mediterranean squadron and details of the activity at the dockyards and naval stations are coming in hot and fast. The Associated Press learns, however, that whether or not Great Britain seriously fears Russian or French aggression, the naval preparations have been under consideration for several months and it was the Admiralty's intention to put them in force as soon as war was declared, deeming it necessary to increase the active strength of the Hart, Miss M. navy in order to insure the large fleet of transports against every possible contingency.

Whether later developments have transformed the Admiralty's precautionary measures into preparations for a naval demonstration necessitated by European hostility is the question of the hour and it is as much a mystery to many high naval officers as to the public. The exact condition of affairs consists of ordering the naval reserves to be in readiness to join their ships at twenty-four hours' notice, while all the cruisers of the reserve class have been ordered to be ready to sail in the same time limit. These vessels, although at the dockyards, are never out of commission and are always supposed to be ready for immediate manning. A dozen cruisers ranging from 6,000 to 11,000 tons are now only awaiting the word

· to embark the crews. In addition to these preparations, work on the uncompleted vessels is being hurried day and night. The special attention being paid to the cruisers is taken by many authorities to Indicate that Great Britain intends to form a menacing flying squadron, using the term "menacing." because the naval, force at sea now is ample to convoy the troops and is capable of preventing any interference in South African waters.

While the British officials do not conceal their knowledge of German, French and Russian antagonism and their irritation thereat, they do not give the slightest hint that European hostility will crystallize in any overt act. But the belief that Great Britain is on the verge of a crisis or even conflict far greater | Dahl, L. than that in the Transvaal has many sup- Falkenflick, S. ... porters, though lack of all official confirmation. favours the conservative views, that the remarkable military and naval activity is due to a desire to take thorough procautions, which, though ominous, have at present no special bearing upon Great Britain's European rela-tions.

Advices from the Continent strengthen this view. For instance, the Frendenblatt of Vienna to day says: Nothing points to the eventuality of the intervention of Europe in favour of the Boers. Man What the transmit and the The paper, adds, that, Germany, especially, has resolved hot to depart from her attitude of neutrality."

On the other hand the Neut Weiner Tagolatt Publishes a tologram from the Transvent Legation at Brussels announcing that Dra Leyds has received formal assurances that Britain to annax the Transvast or the Orange Free State. This is, discredited, however, as it, is, pointed out that, even if this were the intention of the powers mentioned they would not allow their hands to be shown prematurely through the medium of Droleyday.

RUSSIA AND PORT ARTHUR.

ODESSA, October 9th: The transporting of troops from South Russia to the Far East continues with almost monotonous regularity, but the Volunteer fleet cruiser Orel, leaving here next Friday, in addition to Infantry, will convey upwards of 300 Cossacks. These light cavalry troops, we are informed, are to be used especially for the purpose of guarding the Eastern Chinese railway. Information has just arrived that on the late departure of the Russian Pacific squadron from Port Anthur the Admiral in command is reported to have made the following significant speech:-The Pacific squadron was charged with the duty of strengthening our influence on the eastern shores of the Asiatic continent, and to see that that duty was efficiently performed The squadron has justified the confidence reposed in it by its monarch, having fulfilled in the most thorough manner the task laid upon The accurate concentration of the squadron pefore the occupation of the peninsula to which Port Arthur belongs; the occupation itself, conducted withour recourse to force; the despatch shown by us in assuring the occupation to Russia for good, and our determined readiness to oppose every engroachment by others on the territory occupied, have shown clearly that the Russian Pacine squadron holds an indisputably high position in regard to fighting ability .--Times. wood) at the
